

EXTENDED FAMILY MAKES BRIDGEWATER A FAMILY AFFAIR

BridgeWater has a variety of neighborhoods that offer families at every stage of life a place to live and enjoy friends and neighbors. In some cases, generations within the same family have moved to the master community not only for its quality lifestyle and amenities. They have come for the added value of being close to their loved ones.

Larry and LaVinga Trevorrow are recent retirees who made the move from Michigan to the Sunshine state and found a home in BridgeWater, attracted by that pull of family. Their son Kent and his wife Lyndsy and daughter Kendall had moved to Florida and settled in BridgeWater a few years before the Trevorrows. The opportunity to be close to a new grand daughter was strong motivation to make the move.

“We knew the kids really liked living at BridgeWater and we thought it was a great community as well,”

said Lavinga. “Our daughter Jaime and her husband Steve live in the Westley Chapel area so we knew we wanted to be in Central Florida. Once we started seriously talking about making the move Lyndsy called one day and said she found a great house in BridgeWater. We jumped at the opportunity and moved sight unseen.”

According to Larry it’s been a good life change. He and Lavigna are big Detroit Tigers baseball fans and enjoy the team’s spring training season in Lakeland. He also said it’s been easy to keep fit thanks to his grand daughter.

“Kendall loves to go with her Papa to workout at the fitness center,” said Larry. “It’s a short walk to the Lake Club and we have a great time going there together.”

LaVinga enjoys the lake views from their house and all the water birds. “We have a pair of Sandhill Cranes that like to hang out in our backyard,” she said. “There are also lots of herons and other birds always coming and going on the lake. It’s really a beautiful place.”
